How does this text portray the significance of weddings and their participants?

How do biblical weddings reflect God's glory?

Assess your Life

If married – do you have any disappointments about your wedding day? If single – do you have any reservations about getting married?

Have you considered what it means to be a witness and celebrant at weddings you have attended in the past?

If married – how has the covenant you made before God helped you to endure through the difficult moments of marriage?

Apply the Truth

How should the recognition of being a witness and celebrant affect your response to future wedding invitations?

How can Christians honor the significance of weddings and the meaning of biblical marriage?

How can you more effectively work out the importance of covenants in your life?

Commit this Week

Will you commit to placing greater value on the marriage covenant and greater responsibility in being a witness and celebrant at future weddings?

“Go out, O daughters of Zion, and look upon King Solomon, with the crown with which his mother crowned him on the day of his wedding, on the day of the gladness of his heart.” (Song of Solomon 3:11, ESV)
